Schools of University Alliance Online Rated Among Best in Business

TAMPA, FL (March 1, 2007) – Three schools affiliated with the University Alliance Online have been rated among the “50 Best MBA Schools for Getting Hired,” according to a new ranking released by CNNMoney.com.

Thunderbird School of Global Management, the University of Notre Dame and Tulane University appear on the 2007 list as follows:

- # 17. Thunderbird School of Global Management
- # 25. University of Notre Dame
- # 39. Tulane University

The rankings were based on an analysis of the top 111 accredited business schools by Fortune magazine and its Web partner, QS.

“These impressive rankings attest to each school's academic excellence and commitment to providing superior education for today's business students,” said Adrian Marrullier, Executive Vice President of University Alliance Online. “We are pleased to collaborate with them to make their top-quality programs available online.”

The CNNMoney.com ranking is the latest accolade for the schools. All three were recently ranked highly in “America's Best Colleges,” a publication of U.S. News & World Report. In addition, Thunderbird was ranked No. 1 in international business for the third consecutive year — ahead of Harvard, Columbia and Yale, according to the Wall Street Journal's poll of corporate recruiters.
